SINO—ITALIAN RELATIONS IN GOOD ORDER, SAYS ENVOY

Minister To Peking Sees No Clouds On Horizon

LOAN SITUATION

Only Outstanding Question Concerns Tientsin Shooting

(From Our Staff Correspondent)

Peking, June 17.—Italy's relations with the Chinese Government at the present time are the most cordial and, with the exception of several questions which involve three or four other Powers as well, there are only two or three questions still unsettled, according to M. Vittorio Cerruti, the Italian Minister to Peking.

"Italy, like the other Powers, "M. Cerruti said in an interview granted today, "still has the question of the Italian loans to China to be settled, and is in much the same position as France and Belgium on the question of the payment of the Boxer Indemnity in gold francs. We are associated with five other Powers in the Lincheng outrage demands, and with two other Powers, the United States and Great Britain, in a settlement of the question growing out of the assault on an Italian subject in Peking.

"In all those questions we are associated with other Powers. In only one question, an attack on two Italian subjects while they were driving in a motor car outside Tientsin, are we in direct and sole communication with Dr. Wellington Koo. And if that question were settled, as I hope it will be in the very near future, Italy would have a clean sheet, diplomatically speaking, with the exception of these questions having international characteristics."

The incident M. Cerruti referred to occurred about a year and a half ago when two Italian subjects, one the Chief of Police of the Italian Concession in Tientsin, were fired upon by soldiers while driving in a motor car outside Tientsin. The Italian Legation, assuming that the outrage was committed by some soldiers and an officer belonging to General Feng Yu-hsiang's forces, asked that they be punished and that an indemnity of $3,000 be paid for the motor car, which was the object of more than 200 bullets.

M. Cerruti did not feel it diplomatic to express an opinion on the subject but it is generally assumed in the capital that since General Feng is, for the moment, the military dictator of Peking, the Peking Government has not been able, up to the present, to secure his co-operation in punishing the officer and soldiers involved. Peking might ask that they be punished but unless General Feng happened to be in a pleasant mood the Wuchiaopu would lose much 'face' because they could do nothing without General Feng's assistance.

The only other subject on which Italy has any claim for individuals —outside of the Lincheng claims —concerns the Italian, Castellini, who was assaulted by the soldier Li at the time he ran amuck on the city wall and also assaulted an American and a British subject. In the Li case, M. Cerruti said, settlement would be obtained at his trial on all three assault charges, which has been promised by the authorities in the near future.

Although other Powers still have questions concerning their nationals' capture by bandits to settle with Peking, Italy is all-square in such matters, the last case —the brutal murder of Father Melloto—having been settled by the Chinese volunteering the erection of a hospital in Hankow as a memorial to the brave priest. Italian subjects having claims for such outrages are under instructions to make every effort to settle them with the

Peking Dust

A Daily Chronicle Of The Capital's Gossip And News

(From Our Staff Correspondent)

Peking, June 16.—Peking appears to be permeated with an unquenchable desire to tear down the various walls about the city, walls built hundreds of years ago to protect the capital of bygone Emperors and their courts from the onslaughts of barbarian hosts, and use the money received from the sale of the old bricks, or the bricks themselves, for making public improvement that will make the city more modern.

The latest manifestation of this strange craving to transform an old city, reeking with picturesqueness and imperial traditions, into a mediocre copy of some American "Main Street" is in tearing down the southern portion of the old Tartar City wall and using the bricks to pave some of Peking's streets. The bricks, of course, have grown to such a hoary age that they may be said to be petrified and would make the finest kind of a roadbed, but to secure roads in such a manner means that the city must give up one of its most ancient treasures.

Peking without city walls would not be Peking. They separate the city into certain divisions, hallowed by time, classifying the residents as to occupation, religion, race and even shades of color. They block the rambling courtyards, temples and courtyarded-homes into squares that, seen from the sky, look like a gigantic checker-board on which pigmy figures are moved about through the instrumentality of some unseen chess-player. The dirty gray of the Tartar wall serves as a color offset to the deep and faded carnation hues of the Imperial City, and the yellow tiled roofs of the palaces within the Forbidden City. To tear down the walls for a purely utilarian purpose such as building roads would be to destroy a great deal that has made Peking the most picturesque capital in the world and the proposal to tear down the southern section of the Tartar wall is the wedge by which, eventually, all the walls will be torn down.

In line with the same idea it is reported that the Ministry of the Interior will soon put the famous Arrow Tower up for sale in order to raise funds with which to repair other temples, etc. under their care. It has been estimated that the bricks in the tower are worth approximately $200,000, and the Ministry, in order to realise on their value as soon as possible, is said to have expressed its willingness to accept $100,000 for the tower, the buyer to tear it down and take the bricks.

Aside from the purely sentimental antagonism to having old treasures destroyed it gives those in Peking whose first thought in the morning is where they can squeeze the quickest and most an excellent opportunity to display their art to the fullest extent. It is safe to estimate that if there are 1,000,000 bricks in the Arrow Tower 100,000 of them would disappear between the tower and wherever they were to be stored because the Chinese will get his ten percent even if he has to take it in bricks.

Peking has just lost a large number of visitors through the sailing of the United States Army transport Thomas from Chinwangtao. The American Army and Navy officials in the Philippines have a very pleasing policy of allowing officers and men of both services to come to China on leave that does not count against their regular leave, when they have been ordered to posts in the United States or elsewhere after serving in the Far East.

As a result of this policy there is a constant string of American army and navy people visiting China at all times during the year, but just before each big transport sails there is a general exodus from Manila to Peking for several weeks sightseeing before catching the outgoing boat at Chinwangtao.

The Thomas this trip took out a full passenger list, most of whom have been spending anywhere from three months to two weeks here sightseeing. During their visit they have been a gold mine for curio dealers, rug dealers, and anyone else who has anything to sell to a flock of people

Text Is Received Here Of Supreme Court's Ruling On U.S. Income Tax Abroad

Opinion Delivered By Mr. Justice McKenna Holding Americans In Foreign Lands Are Liable For Assessment

A copy has just been received here of the United States Supreme Court decision regarding collection of income tax from American residents outside the United States, which makes it incumbent upon them to pay the tax.

The test case was carried to the Supreme Court by the American Chamber of Commerce of Mexico and was watched with great interest by American commercial organisations and individuals throughout the world American Chambers of Commerce in various foreign countries had long been agitating against the tax and the American Chamber of Commerce here had endorsed the action of these bodies and approved the request of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that the next Revenue Bill provide exemption for Americans residing abroad and deriving their income from non-American sources.

The case at issue was that of George W. Cook, of the City of Mexico, vs. Galen L. Tait, United States Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Maryland.

OPINION GIVEN

The opinion of the Supreme Court, delivered by Mr. Justice McKenna on May 5, was as follows:

Action by plaintiff in error, he will be referred to as plaintiff, to recover the sum of $298.34 as the first installment of an income tax paid, it is charged, under the threats and demands of Tait.

The tax was imposed under the Revenue Act of 1921, which provides by section 210 (40 Stat. 227, 233): "That, in lieu of the tax imposed by Section 210 of the Revenue Act of 1918, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year upon the net income of every individual a normal tax of 8 per centum of the amount of the net income in excess of the credits provided in Section 216: Provided, That in the case of citizen or resident of the United States the rate upon the first $4.000 of such excess amount shall be 4 per centum." (1).

Plaintiff is a native citizen of the United States and was such when he took up his residence and became domiciled in the City of Mexico. A demand was made upon him by defendant in error, designated defendant, to make a return of his income for the purpose of taxation under the Revenue Laws of the United States. Plaintiff complied with the demand but under protest, the income having been derived from property situated in the City of Mexico. A tax was assessed against him in the sum of $1,193.38, the first installment of which he paid, and for it, as we have said, the action was brought.

The question in the case, and which was presented by the demurrer to the declaration is, as expressed by plaintiff, whether Congress has power to impose a tax upon income received by a native citizen of the United States who at the time the income was received, was permanently resident and domiciled in the City of Mexico, the income being from real and personal property located in Mexico.

DENIES CONTENTION

Plaintiff assigns against the power not only his rights under the Constitution of the United States but under international law and in support of the assignments cites many cases. It will be observed that the foundation of the assignments is the fact that the citizen receiving the income and the property of which it is the product are outside of the territorial limits of the United States. These two facts, the contention is, exclude the existence of the power to tax. Or to put the contention another way, to the existence of the power and its exercise, the person receiving the income and the property from which he receives it must both be within the territorial limits of the United States to be within the taxing power of the United States. The contention is not justified, and that it is not justified is the necessary deduction of recent cases. In United States v. Bennett, 232 U. S. 292, the power of the United States to tax a foreign built yacht owned and used during the taxing period outside of the United States by a citizen domiciled in the United States was sustained. The tax passed on was imposed by a tariff act, (2) but necessarily the power does not depend upon the form by which it is exerted.

It will be observed that the case contained only one of the conditions of the present case, the property taxed was outside of the United States. In United States v. Goelet, id. 293, the yacht taxed was outside of the United States but owned by a citizen of the United States who was "permanently resident and domiciled in a foreign country." It was decided that the yacht was not subject

NOTED AMERICAN TRAVEL WRITER DIES IN NANKING

Mr. Frank G. Carpenter Succumbs After Brief Illness; Bring Body Here

Frank G. Carpenter, famous American traveler, correspondent and author, whose geographical readers are in general use as text books throughout the world, died in Nanking yesterday morning of cystitis, following a three weeks' illness.

Mr. Carpenter, despite his advanced age—he was 69—was in the Orient to gather material for magazine articles. He sailed from Seattle on February 14th last and passed through Japan, Shanghai, Hongkong, Canton and Manila, returning to Shanghai on May 19th. He was here for about ten days then went to Soochow and Wusih, en route to Nanking. He was taken ill two days after his arrival in Nanking and went to the Foreign Hospital where he was in charge of Dr. Wilmot who, in consultation with Drs. Hutcheson and Daniels, diagnosed his ailment as cystitis with serious kidney complications. Everything possible was done for him but he succumbed on June 18, at 7:22 a.m. His secretary, Mr. Chester Wathen, and Dr. John C. Ferguson, of Peking, his friend for thirty years, were with him during his illness and when he died.

Mr. Carpenter's body was brought to Shanghai last night and it is likely that a private service will be held in the chapel in Bubbling Well cemetery this afternoon. Mr. Wathen will accompany the body to America. Mr. Carpenter, who resided at the Cosmos Club in Washington, D. C., is survived by two children, a son and a daughter, both of whom are married and live in Chicago.

There were few travelers and writers whose works were more widely read than those of Mr. Carpenter. Born in Mansfield, Ohio, in 1855, Mr. Carpenter grew up and was educated in his native state. He began his newspaper career as a legislative correspondent in 1879. He was correspondent for the Cleveland Leader and, subsequently, the American Press Association and the New York World. He made his first trip around the world for a newspaper syndicate and Cosmopolitan Magazine in 1888-9. This was followed by a newspaper tour to Mexico in 1891; to Russia, Germany and England in 1892; to China, Japan and Korea in 1894; in South America in 1898; in the Philippines, China, Java, Australia and New Zealand in 1900.

In 1902 Mr. Carpenter went to Europe to investigate the "Commercial invasion" in England, France, Germany, Russia, Holland, Belgium, Norway, Sweden and Denmark. Three years later he was in Panama, Cuba, and Canada. His first trip to Africa was made in 1906 but this was a lengthy tour, for he went from Morocco to Egypt and from Cairo to the Cape.

Mr. Carpenter was always interested in Asia and he came here again to investigate the awakening of China, Korea and Japan in 1908. He returned to America

LABOR IS FACTOR

Opposition Looks To Commonwealth Group To Lead

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 17.—The Dominions Gallery of the House of Commons and the Liberal and Labor benches were early filled today for the debate on Imperial preference.

Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame moved the first of the resolutions, of which notice had been given in the name of Mr. Baldwin. The first four of the resolutions proposed Imperial preference without imposing any new charge on the foreigner, while the remainder did impose such a charge. While there is small chance of the Opposition carrying the last six resolutions, there is a chance of their carrying the first four, if their appeal for a non-Party debate succeed. The Opposition in this connection in this connection looks to the sixty Labor Members of the British Commonwealth group to give the lead to their party.

The first resolution proposes that Imperial figs, raisins, plums and currants should be imported duty free.

FRENCH PURSER UNINVOLVED IN ARMS EPISODE

Smuggler Arrested Here Was Not Purser Of The Angers

In the story printed in yesterday's issue regarding the arrest of two French sailors from the steamer Angers and the seizure of pistols and ammunition, by the police, it was mentioned that one of the prisoners, named Renucke, or Renucci, was purser of the vessel, as was stated in the official police report. The Messageries Maritimes informs, however, that the man mentioned was not the purser of the ship and that the purser was in no way connected with the episode. Opportunity is therefore taken of correcting the previous report.

The two men arrested, Renucke and Giorgi, were charged in the French Court and were remanded for trial before a French naval court.

No Immediate Relief For Street Disruption Here

The matter of traffic disruption owing to the tearing up of Municipal roads and the difficulties of ameliorating this condition are discussed by the Commissioner of Public Works in a report turned in to the Council and published in today's Municipal Gazette. The Commissioner sees little hope of bettering the situation under present conditions and sets forth the reasons.

The Council has recently had under consideration the question of the condition of the roads, with special regard to the possibility of better co-ordination of effort where road opening work is requisite in connection with the public utility services. The Commissioner in his reply states that his Department and the various public utility companies are kept in closest touch possible and cites the practise in effect and the difficulties thereunto attendant.

MANY REASONS

There are many reasons, he states, for the present state of affairs, first among which is the fact that the Settlement has increased in population by 200,000 since 1913, while in the same space of time buildings to the value of Tls. 94,000,000—a total of 54,123 structures—have been erected, the public services having to cope with the demands which this development entails. During the past five years no less than 250 miles of trench have been excavated in Municipal Roa , and as the total mileage of roads under the Council's control is about 140 it is obvious that there must have been co-ordination between the Department and the services.

The absence of any "zoning" byelaws and lack of an adequate system of arterial roads has made it difficult to form any comprehensive plan with much hope that changing conditions will not render such plan useless in a few years, the report states. The situation of the Waterworks and the Electricity power stations at one end of the Settlement has entailed the laying of miles of large mains through districts which such mains do not serve, and under conditions which are bad for the work involved, in order to supply the demands of intensive industrial development at the other end of and beyond the Settlement.

The root of the whole trouble, the Commissioner states, is the poor road system and the inadequate widths of most of the existing roads. Little or no consideration has been given in the past to the effect that a good road system has upon the economy and efficiency of public utility services, and this applies as much to a tramway or omnibus system as to the distribution systems of companies requiring underground mains.

A great advance was made, the report continues, in 1922 and 1923 in the amount of road widenings carried out, but it must be remembered that the amount of work done has a direct relation to the amount of money available; for instance, in the endeavor to keep expenditure in 1924 near the budget appropriation of Tls. 1,000,000, many negotiations are now being allowed to languish and new ones are being taken up mainly only when brought about by owners' rebuilding schemes.

The various different administrations in Shanghai and their frequent lack of co-operaton are also

CHINESE BANKS' METHODS MAKE ROBBERIES EASY

Police Commissioner Makes Pertinent Comment On Carelessness Shown

Some highly pertinent comment regarding the carelessness in methods employed by some local Chinese banking establishments is made by the Acting Commissioner of Police in the section of his report dealing with the robbery of the Yung Yue native bank, Tientsin Road, of $11,024 on May 30. No report of the robbery was made to the police, it may be remembered, until nearly an hour and a half after it was said to have occurred, though there was a telephone in the place.

"The Yung Yue is a well established bank of good standing," the report states, "heavily staffed, and doing considerable business: yet its banking room has no physical protection of any kind, one of its two safes is made of painted wood and thousands of dollars in notes are commonly kept in an unlocked drawer accessible without difficulty to any person entering the room. On this occasion it appears that a coolie employed by another bank had, unaccompanied, a few hours previously carried notes to the value of $20,000 in an unlocked basket through the streets from Ningpo Road to the bank that was robbed—a means of conveyance that is said to be quite usual. With such methods in vogue, constituting as they do an open invitation to robbers, it is clearly impossible for the police to protect people from the natural consequence of their own deliberate neglect."

ARNHOLD CO.'S MANAGER AT WANSHIEN IS MURDERED

E. C. Hawley, American, Killed By River Junkmen

DETAILS ARE FEW

Slaying Outgrowth Of Junk—Steamer Feud

A telegram was received in Shanghai last night from Wanshien, announcing that an American, Mr. E. C. Hawley, Wanshien manager for Arnhold and Co., Ltd., and a former missionary, had been killed by members of the junkmen's guild while he was superintending the loading of a cargo of wood oil on the Butterfield and Swire steamer Wan Liu at Wanshien.

Few details of the killing were given in the telegram received here, and at a late hour last night Mr. C. H. Arnhold, of the firm of Arnhold and Co., Ltd., had not heard of the tragedy.

Mr. Arnhold stated that he did not know Mr. Hawley personally, but knew that he had been an employe of the firm for some years. He was of the impression that Mrs. Hawley was in America at present.

There has been continual strife between members of the junkmen's guild in the upriver cities and the river steamer crews for some years, the junkmen contending that the steam vessels were depriving them of a chance to earn a living. Their opposition to the entrance of steam vessels in the river trade has been violent and attended by much strife and bloodshed.

Wanshien is an important commercial city on the Yangtsze river about half way between Ichang and Chungking. The principal commodity exported from there is wood oil.

Chinese Trying To Meet Foreign Views In Trade Mark Issue

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 18.—It is reported on good authority although the Legations have not been officially informed, that the Trade Marks Bureau has decided to extend the period for registration of trade marks another six months and also that the Bureau is negotiating for the services of a foreign expert, who will probably be a Norwegian.

Foreign officials assert that the Chinese are now showing a real desire to meet foreign requirements.

Fengtien Assembly Gives Views On Pact

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 18.—The Provincial Assembly and other public bodies of Fengtien have sent out a circular telegram stating that they have no special objection to China's resumption of formal relations with Russia, but they feel constrained to raise objection to the fact that Russia made the agreement with the Peking Government, which has no knowledge, says the telegram, of actual conditions in Manchuria. The telegram declares that they will never recognise any of the treaties concluded by Peking since May, 1921, and they feel sure that the unanimous public opinion of the Manchurian Provinces will not be disregarded by Chang Tso-lin.

MUSSOLINI IS DETERMINED TO WIPE OUT PARTY STAINS

Ex-Premiers To Sit In "Great Concentration Ministry"

CHAMBER CLOSED

Search For Matteotti Kidnappers Continues

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, June 17.—Signor Mussolini is evidently determined to purify the Administration from the stains of the scandals revealed by the Matteotti affair. Apart from closing the Chamber of Deputies and the appointment of a temporary Fascist Directory, it is reported that the holders of the celebrated Annunziata Order have been summoned to see the King for the purpose of forming a "great concentration ministry," including, besides Signor Mussolini, the former Premiers, Signor Giolitti and Signor Orlando.

Signor Mussolini has taken up the duties of Minister of the Colonies, having appointed Signor Federzoni Minister of the Interior in succession to Signor Finzi, who has resigned in order to defend himself against a charge of complicity in the kidnapping of Signor Matteotti. It is noteworthy that the Corriere Italiano, of which Signor Filippelli was editor, was Signor Finzi's organ. Signor Moncada, the Prefect of Trieste, has been appointed Director-General of Public Safety, and three judges have been appointed to investigate the Matteotti affair. Signor Mussolini told the Cabinet that the search for those implicated in the kidnapping was proceeding ruthlessly.

French President Stresses Need Of Order And Peace

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 17.—President Doumergue, in his message to Parliament, declares that he is determined to remain an impartial arbitrator above the parties. He emphasises the need for calm, order and peace in order to develop commerce and industry and restore the prosperity of the country. The President declares that the absence of peace is not the fault of France, who fosters no dangerous ambitions and only desires payment of reparations and guarantees of security. The question of reparations seems to be approaching a final solution, but the debtor must prove good faith by definite action in a conciliatory spirit. France cannot cease her vigilance, and renounce her established position or method of control, which the Treaties entitled her to exercise in Germany, which appears to be preparing for a war of revenge instead of fulfilling her engagements.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 17.—The Prime Minister, M. Herriot, in his Ministerial statement, said that it was impossible to evacuate the Ruhr before the pledges provided by the experts and effective guarantees had been constituted and handed over to qualified international organisations. The disarmament of Germany must be controlled by common effort of the Allies and as soon as possible by the League of Nations.

M. Herriot said that resumption of normal relations with Russia was being prepared under conditions imposed by respect for the treaties.

He foreshadowed extensive conversion operations, and said that active military service would be shortened, though in such a manner that France would never be taken by surprise or enfeebled.

Y.W.C.A. SCHOOL OF HYGIENE HAS COMMENCEMENT

Interesting Exercises Are Held In Gardens Of Faculty Residence

Commencement exercises of the Y.W.C.A. Normal School of Hygiene and Physical Education were held yesterday afternoon in the gardens of the faculty residence. Following the exercises, a demonstration, which included games, dances and gymnastic exercises, was given by girl students of the school. Special interest attached to the event because of the fact that the school is to be merged with Ginling College, Nanking. There were 14 members of the Senior class and 16 Juniors.

Mrs. U. C. Chen, chairman of the national committee of the Y.W.C.A. presided at the exercises, which were attended by many relatives and friends of the graduates.

Miss Abby Shaw Mayhew, first principal of the school, was the chief speaker of the day. In an inspiring address, Miss Mayhew paid a tribute of love and respect to the late Miss Grace Coppock, former national general secretary of the Y.W.C.A., who first conceived the idea of the school as an association activity.

Mrs. Chen and Miss Jervis, present principal of the school, at the conclusion of Miss Mayhew's address presented the graduates with their diplomas and also presented to the winners the tennis cup and shield for track and field events. After the singing of the school song and the recessional, there was an interval for tea, following which the gymnastic demoutsration took place.

The events on this part of the program included:

Marching and gymnastics, the game of "Doctor's Relay," English country dances—"Parson's Farewell" and "Boatman,"—Chinese boxing, interpretative dancing—"Soldier's Dance" and "The Brown Bear—" folk dancing—"Wooden Shoes" and the Swedish dance "Gotlendskadrilj," and the "Balloon Dance," a graceful interpretative fantasy.

Singing of the Chinese National Anthem closed the exercises.

going home, and the Peking hotels, but particularly the Grand Hotel de Wagon Lits, which seems to be the favorite of the service people, have been doing a rushing business.

General Johnson Hagood, formerly commander of Camp Stotsenburg in the Philippines, who has been here over a month awaiting transportation on the Thomas, took ill with malaria at the last minute and was unable to sail yesterday. It is expected he will return to the United States to proceed to his new post at Fort Totten, New York, on a passenger liner from Shanghai as soon as he recovers.

The most popular place in Peking, as far as newspapermen are concerned, at the present time is the headquarters of the Russian Soviet Mission, up one of the hutungs, or lanes, of Morrison Street, the only street in Peking, by the way, with a foreign name. The hutung is barely wide enough for a ricsha but at all hours of the day and often late at night it is blocked with ricshas carrying all manner and sorts of people, with a liberal sprinkling of newspapermen of all nationalities.

The Wai Chiao Pu, or Foreign Office, gives any news it has out at stated intervals so that all the newspapermen go at the same time and receive thir stereotyped copy. The American Legation follows the same method at conferences held every noon. News from the other Legations depends entirely on what is going on. Sometimes there's a story to be had, generally not.

Russia's recognition by China, as important a diplomatic act as it was, did not settle the situation, however, and there are still a number of highly interesting points concerning Russia's future relations with China which need to be settled before peace will reign supreme. What's to be done with the property of the Russian Orthodox Church? What's to be done about the Legation and the consular property? Who is to be the Minister or Ambassador of each country? What about Mongolia? What about Tibet? What about the White Russians?

Each has its interesting phase. Each has numerous ramifications and complications which make good reading and serve a little to clear up the general situation. As a consequence American newspapermen, who predominate in Peking, on local papers as well as representing news agencies and papers in the United States, representatives of the outstanding British papers who have political correspondents here, reporters for the various news agencies, Chinese, Japanese and foreign, and a host of special men or free lances, literally camp on the Soviet doorstep. Mr. Karakhan is too busy to see them all but every now and then one gets in, or Mr. Karkahan, wishing to reach them all at the some time, releases the story through the Rosta News Agency, the official news bureau of the Russians in China.

Peking has always plenty of petty political news but the big news here at the present time revolves about the Russians—either in regard to their relationship with the Chinese, or the Japanese, as their negotiations are still going on, quietly, but surely leading toward recognition. Consequently newspapermen here to make use of a much abused and hoary pun, are doing a Russian business.

to the tax—but this as a matter of construction. Pains were taken to say that the question of power was determined "wholly irrespective" of the owner's "permanent domicile in a foreign country." And the Court put out of view the situs of the yacht. That the Court had no doubt of the power to tax was illustrated by reference to the income tax laws of prior years and their express extension to those domiciled abroad. The illustration has pertinence to the case at bar, for the case at bar is concerned with an income tax, and the power to impose it.

NATIONAL POWER

We may make further exposition of the national power as the case depends upon it. It was illustrated at once in United States v. Bennett by a contrast with the power of a State. It was pointed out that there were limitations upon the latter that were not on the national power. The taxing power of a State, it was decided, encountered at its borders the taxing power of other States and was limited by them. There was no such limitation, it was pointed out, upon the national power, and that the limitation upon the States affords, it was said, no ground for constructing a barrier around the United States "shutting that government off from the exertion of powers which inherently belong to it by virtue of its sovereignty."

The contention was rejected that a citizen's property without the limits of the United States derives no benefit from the United States. The contention, it was said, came from the confusion of thought in "mistaking the scope and extent of the sovereign power of the United States as a nation and its relations to its citizens and their relation to it." And that power in its scope and extent—it was decided, is "based on the presumption that government by its very nature benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and that opposition to it holds on to citizenship while it "belittles and destroys its advantages and blessings by denying the possession by government of an essential power required to make citizenship completely beneficial." In other words, the principle was declared that the government, by its very nature, benefits the citizen and his property wherever found and, therefore, has the power to make the benefit complete. Or to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax.

Judgment affirmed.

Mr. Justice McReynolds took no part in the consideration or decision of this case.

(1) The following regulation, No. 62, promulgated by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue under the Revenue Act of 1921, provides in Article 3: "Citizens of the United States except those entitled to the benefits of section 262....wherever resident, are liable to the tax. It makes no difference that they may own no assets in the United States and may receive no income from sources in the United States. Every resident alien individual is liable to the tax, even though his income is wholly from outside the United States. Every non-resident alien individual is liable to the tax on his income from sources within the United States."

(2) Sec. 37, Tariff Act of August 5, 1909, c. 6, 36 Stat. 11, 112, provided in part as follows: "There shall be levied and collected annually on the first day of September by the collector of the customs of the district nearest the residence of the managing owner, upon the use of every foreign-built yacht, pleasure-boat or vessel, not used or intended to be used for trade, now or hereafter owned or chartered for more than six months by any citizen or citizens of the United States, a sum equivalent to a tonnage tax of seven dollars per gross ton."

BIG BETTERMENT IN QUALITY OF ICE CREAM HERE

Health Department Investigation Shows Improvement In Product

A gratifying improvement in the quality of ice cream dispensed by foreign and Chinese shops in the Settlement as compared with last year is recorded by the Acting Commissioner of Health in his report for May, published in today's Municipal Gazette.

The report states that of seven samples from foreign shops and nine from Chinese six of each passed the standard. The Commissioner comments:

"This is an immense improvement on the results of last year, when only one out of the first 25 specimens examined came up to standard and the other 24 showed no evidence of any attempt at proper sterilisation. Even at the end of the season the proportion of satisfactory samples was not so good as it is now, and further improvement in expected. There can be no question but that the standard required is quite easy of attainment, and that failure to attain it is evidence of neglect of the simple and necessary precautions specified in the license conditions for the protection of the consumer."

local authorities in the districts involved. Most of the Italians involved in such cases are Catholic missionaries and the Bishops in the unfortunate districts have, in the past, secured much more satisfaction by dealing with the local authorities than the Legation has secured when the question has been taken up with the duly constituted Peking Government.

This situation is the direct consequence of the present unsettled conditions prevailing in China and an example of the impossible situation the Diplomatic Body is up against in attempting a settlement of any of their claims against China. M. Cerruti would not, of course, be drawn into a discussion of the manner in which China has been divided up among the militarists now in Power but the actions of the Italian Legation speak for themselves only too clearly.

General Wu Pei-fu is in control of a very large slice of the country and the country's most powerful militarist, but even he does not wield, sufficient Power to stretch down as far as Nanking, from where Tuchun Chi's power radiates. General Lu controls Chekiang and the district surrounding Shanghai. Marshal Chang Tso-lin has the territory outside the Great Wall in the palm of his hand. General Feng Yu-hsiang is in command of Peking—and practically every province and every large city in the province has its military leader, more or less powerful, who has to be pacified before the Wai Chiao Pu can get any action in their districts.

ITALIAN LOAN

"The question of Italian loans to China cannot be settled until there is an international discussion of China's debts," M. Cerruti continued. 'Italy is involved to the extent of approximately £3,000,000 in what are known as the ex-Austrian loans. The loan was made by a shipyards in Trieste, then under the jurisdiction of Austria, for the construction of warships for the Chinese navy. Since then, of course, Trieste, has been returned to Italy, and as Italian citizens hold China's notes for the £3,000,000 involved it is Italy which must settle the question. The debts question must be settled, and unquestionably settled, before the proposed conference with the Powers is held to settle the Customs increases.

"Our other outstanding question involving other Powers is the Boxer Indemnity. When the indemnity was divided among the participating Powers after 1901 Italy's share was 99,813,768.75 gold francs. Payments were made until 1917 when China, upon entering the war on the side of the Allies, was granted five years' grace in paying the yearly installments. At the conclusion of the World War, however, the country was in turmoil, and as a consequence no payments have been made since 1922. In other words China is now seven years behind in its payments to Italy.

"The yearly payments at the present time amount to 5,430,711.90 gold francs per year and China owes, approximately, 38,000,000 gold francs to Italian citizens. France and Belgium are in practically the same position as Italy except that while those two countries are themselves the creditors it is certain Italian subjects, and not the Kingdom of Italy, to whom China owes the Italian share of the Boxer Indemnity funds. The Italian Governments is merely acting as the intermediary for the payment of the money due, and as we must pay our subjects in gold francs, we must insist upon being paid in gold francs.

"For the same reason there has been no discussion concerning the return of the Boxer Indemnity to China for educational purposes—as the United States has done, and as France and Great Britian are now considering according to reports. The Italian Government is merely the agent of Italian firms and individuals in Peking, Shanghai and Tientsin, as well as missionaries throughout the country, who lost lives and property as a result of the terrible uprising of the fanatical Boxers, and so we, just as France and Belgium, are insisting upon payment in gold francs rather than payment in paper currency."

Italy has signed the Washington Agreement so Chinese politicans cannot charge, as they have in the case of France, that Italy is holding up action on the agreement favorable to China's interests, until the gold franc issue is settled favorably to France. If China settles with France to France's satisfaction, however, she cannot refuse to settle with Belgium and Italy on the same terms so that the question, while in nowise related, will have a powerful influence on each other.

"Otherwise, "M. Cerruti said, and smiled," it might be said that very cordial relations exist between the governments of the King of Italy and Mussolini, and China. Italy, like the other Powers, is interested in seeing a strong government in Peking which will eradicate the present ills and provide the Chinese people, as well as foreigners who are here for educational and religious purposes, as well as for business, with every possible advantage to lead their lives and carry on their business with safety and security to the end that China may grow and develop into the rich future that is deservedly hers."

Japanese Buying Up All 'Tong Mu' Trees In Pinchow

(China Press Correspondence)

Pinchow, Shensi, June 9.—The carpenters of the city are beginning to wonder when the Japanese will stop cutting off their supply of raw materials. This district is especially noted for an abundance of "Tong-mu" trees. The lumber made from this tree is particularly suitable for the manufacture of wooden bellows, which are a necessity in every Chinese home, as well as to the blacksmiths. The wood of this tree is very light, does not warp, resists rotting better than most woods, and makes a very smooth finish when planed. These bellows are shipped to other cities along this highway, which is one of China's most notable, by the hundreds and some times thousands daily in certain seasons of the year.

Last fall and winter some Japanese with a gang of trained men worked hard and succeeded quite well in buying nearly all the usable trees, and made almost a clean sweep of the whole district by paying four times the price the local lumber men would pay. For large trees they paid over a hundred dollars which is a fabulous price in these parts. From a quite reliable source it was learned that at least $500,000 were spent in and about this city. The workmen who sawed the lumber up into rectangular blocks resembling a brick soon made the inns that were leased for the purpose look like congested lumber yards. Soon here and there all around could be seen wooden towers mounting some over fifty feet high of nothing else than these blocks piled up so they would dry quickly. The talk of the whole town was about these queer blocks and what they were to be used for. Some said they were to be used for railroad ties, and some, to build ships with, while others said they were to be used in making some dreadful war weapon which only knew the Japanese how to make. The probability is that they are to be used for Japanese shoes.

The report that they are back again is out.

Shensi is all a bloom with poppy flowers. If one were altogether unacquainted with appalling effects of the opium and the subtle power for evil hidden underneath the colorful flowers, the ocean expanse of beautiful color, would make one think that Shensi was a paradise, and the people very keen on the artistic and beautiful. But alas, even to one unacquainted, the dusky half-clad sunbaked figures slowly moving through the blooming fields with intense, unhappy faces interested only in making the poppy pads bleed their white poison to the filling of the pockets of the already rich and to the added misery and poverty of the already poor and down-trodden, would raise the suspicion that it was all for money and not for beauty.

Russo-Japanese Delegates Reach Agreement Basis

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 18.—A compromise by both sides has resulted in the reaching of a satisfactory basis for a formal agreement on Russo-Japanese questions, if approved by the Cabinet, according to remarks credited by a press interview to Mr. Miyagawa, an interpreter attached to the Peking Legation. Mr. Miyagawa, who has just returned from China, is reported to have stated that this compromise affected such questions as the withdrawal of troops and recognition of responsibility for Nikolaievsk.

Russ Consulates To Be Handed Over

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 15.—In common with the foreign press in North China, the Chinese papers in Peking freely express their views regarding the question of handing over the Russian Legation in Peking to the Soviet Representative. Most of the Chinese papers consider that the representatives of the Protocol Powers are quite unreasonable in the attitude adopted in the Note from the Netherlands Minister to the Waichiaopu. One paper states that the Cabinet yesterday drafted a fresh Note which will be sent to the representatives of the Protocol Powers by the Waichiaopu, but in the meantime the Russian Consulates throughout China will be handed over to the Soviet Mission.

Science Society Of China Has Meeting Next Month

The Science Society of China will hold its annual conference this year from July 1 to 5, at the Society's headquarters, Wonder's Lane, Nanking. The occasion will be especially notable for its being the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Society.

In spite of the unsettled conditions in China during the last ten years, the Science Society of China has been steadily widening its scope of activities, and increasing its usefulness to the country. Shortly after the founding of the Society, it began to publish a monthly journal, "Science", which has been continued without interruption for the last nine years.

The lack of standardisation of scientific terms in China has always been a stumbling block to the advancement of sciences. The Science Society, in co-operation with certain other scientific organisations, is rendering a great service to the country by standardising and selecting proper Chinese words for scientific and technical terms. The works in physical sciences have practically been finished, while the translation of the proper terms in biology and geology is also well under way. The Society has already acquired headquarters in Nanking, while branch offices were also established in Peking, Shanghai and Canton. In 1920, a library was established in the Nanking headquarters and was soon opened to the public. At present the library contains over 20,000 volumes of scientific books written in European languages, and about 10,000 volumes of Chinese books, besides 150 current scientific journals, mostly in English. Among its valuable collection are the publications of Smithsonian and Carnegie Institutions and sets of back numbers of standard scientific magazines.

The dedication of the Biological Research Laboratory took place in Nanking about two years ago. There is at present a staff of two professors and three assistants working on specific problems in biological sciences. A very good collection of Chinese marine fauna are exhibited on the first floor of the laboratory.

Popular lectures on scientific subjects are given every spring and autumn, aided sometimes by lantern slides and experiments. These lectures are well attended by students from universities and high schools.

The Society is planning to install a wireless set in the immediate future; it is only waiting for the official sanction for the installation. It has also decided to undertake the work of exact determination of longitudes and latitudes of various places in China, starting from the province of Kiangsu. The Educational Commisioner of this province has recently requested the Society to make a survey of the science teaching in the secondary schools and to recommend ways of improving it.

The membership of the Society has steadily increased during recent years, until at present, it numbers more than 700. All are university graduates, some of them still pursuing advanced courses abroad.

More than one hundred members have already pledged to come to the meeting this summer, and a score of them have consented to send original papers to be read at the conference. A few of the foreign members will also be in Nanking to attend the conference, among others are Prof. A. W. Grabau, of Peking University; Dr. H. Chatley, Acting Chief Engineer of the Whangpoo Conservancy, and Prof. W. Adolph, of Shantung Christian College.

In connection with the conference, there will be an exhibit of scientific apparatus and instruments, biological and geological collections and different kinds of charts and maps. Besides those specimens prepared and collected by the Society, several of the educational and industrial concerns, such as the Commercial Press, Andersen and Meyer, etc., have promised to send exhibits. These exhibits are open to the public.

Tonight's Boxing Card At Carlton Should Be One Of Best Ever Offered Here

Garcia And Hill, Who Will Appear In The Main Event, Are Fast And Clever Boys; Garcia Best Boxer, But Hill Has Punch

By Westa

Tonight's boxing card at the Carlton brings together two of the classiest scrappers who have shown here since Jim Sullivan started the boxing ball rolling last year, Lenardo Garcia and Johnny Hill.

If these boys really fight—and there is every reason for believing that they will—it should be a bang up, Number One battle and no mistake. These boys have met twice before, both times in Manila. In the first of these engagements Garcia got the decision and when they clashed the next time the verdict was a draw, although the Hill faction let out a big yelp at this on the ground that Johnny had scored two clean knockdowns.

It will be a battle of boxer versus slugger. Garcia is as fast as lightning, but has not shown any great punching ability in his bouts here. Hill, on the other hand, carries a haymaker in either paw and when he lands it usually is good night for the other chap.

Both of the principals in tonight's main event have wins over Billy Tingle to their credit. Garcia trimmed Billy last winter, and Johnny handed him more than he could handle last week. To Billy's credit, however, it can be said that he gave away weight to both boys, and every pound given away among the little fellows means a great handicap.

The boxing fans have been showing a greatly increased interest in the game in recent weeks, which makes the boxers more than ever eager to put on good shows and to give the customers a run for their money. Ever since these Filipino boys have been here there has been more or less talk about them all being roommates and that sort of thing, but never yet has there been a suspicion of throwing a single one of the bouts, or of the boys giving anything except the best they had in stock.

Witness last week's semi final between De la Cruz and Felipe Flores. In this mixup Flores was hit with everything except the ring posts. He was lambasted so hard and so often that there wouldn't have been the slightest murmur of discontent if he had gone down in a heap in any round after the fifth, yet he stuck it through to the end, taking one of the worst lickings ever handed to a box fighter in the local ring.

That fight spoke volumes for the sincerity of the Filipino boys, and went the whole distance in the matter of proving, if such proof were needed, that all friendship ceases as soon as they are in the ring ready to do battle.

Another entry on tonight's card that will please the fans is our old friend Kyko, who will mix with a guy whose name, as nearly as can be made out from the terrible handwriting of the Carlton's press agent, is Nyberg. Who Mr. Nyberg is or where he hails from is not stated. He will meet a tough hombre in Kyko, provided the latter has recovered from the whaling he absorbed at the Stadium some weeks ago, when Kid Volaire knocked him silly.

Tonight's bouts will be held, rain or shine. If the weather is good the ring will be on the roof, as before; but if it is raining or too threatening the bouts will be staged in the dining room down stairs, Louie's countesses and princesses having graciously volunteered to retire from the field of their usual evening's industry a few hours.

All the regulars are hoping, however, that the fights may be staged on the roof, as usual. It is very pleasant to sit up there in the breezes and watch the knuckle dusters earn their salt.

BASEBALL TOMORROW!

The game of baseball that was scheduled for today, between the Gallopers and the Ento team, has been postponed until tomorrow, on account of wet grounds. Manager Gallop said yesterday that if the weather permitted a stiff practice session would be held at the ball park this afternoon, and he hoped that all candidates for the team would be out.

On Saturday the Gallopers will take on the Elcano team in a game that was postponed from Wednesday, and on Sunday the Ajax nine will furnish the opposition.

Next week the Japanese team from Dairen, representing the South Manchurian Railway, will be here for a series of six games. This is a strong team; said to be one of the strongest Japanese teams playing anywhere. More about these games later.

Everybody out today for practice.

Lady Golfers Here Had Fine Season

The Shanghai Ladies Golf Club's season has come to a close. Unfortunately, owing to wet and unsettled weather latterly one or two matches had to be cancelled.

The Season on the whole has been a most successful one. The interclub Matches with the Hungjao Ladies being much enjoyed.

The best score of the season was made by Mrs. J. S. S. Cooper, with an 83. Mrs. Muriel and Mrs. Lofting coming next with 84 each.

The best score at Shanghai was also won by Mrs. Cooper with a 46. Mrs. Sleap coming second with 47.

Mrs. J. S. S. Cooper is a great acquisition to the Club. She has won several of the Competitions including the Club Championship.

It is requested that Members kindly notify the Secretary promptly of any change of address.

Railway Claims Not Prejudiced

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 18.—With regard to Reuter's Peking correspondent's report yesterday of the Waichiaopu's reply to the Japanese Note concerning the Chinese Eastern Railway, the Waichiaopu says that the report does not fully represent the attitude adopted in the Chinese Note. In declining to consider the reservation, the Chinese reply had reference to a possibility of interference with future Sino-Russian negotiations concerning the Railway, while as regards the legitimate claims which Japan or any other Power might have against the Railway, it expressly stated that they had not been prejudiced by the recent Sino-Russian negotiations.

cited among the reasons for the situation. Owing to the number of these administrations, having jurisdiction in the vicinity of the Settlement, the report says, their supposed conflicting interests and their different powers, no real attempt has ever been made to plan an arterial road system for the town as a whole, with the result that in places like Chapei and that portion of Paoshan in the neighborhood of North Szechuen Road, the worst features of the worst parts of the settlement have been repeated, while in the area West of the Western District private building developments proceeds without consideration being given to future road requirements.

NO IMMEDIATE RELIEF

"I see no prospect of relief from road work in the near future, "the report concludes." The doubling of the tramway tracks in Broadway and Broadway East will cause temporary inconvenience to, and diversion of traffic, for, though considerable progress has been made in the widening of East Seward Road, it is not—except for freight traffic—a satisfactory relief road to Broadway. The condition of the track in Bubbling Well Road and Avenue Road also calls for early reconstruction. Railless tram extensions will necessitate several miles of feeder cable, and I think, too, that it cannot be long before additional pumping mains will be required by the Waterworks Company for the Northern and Western Districts. The heaviest part of the sewerage works should be over in two years or thereabouts, but so long as the town expands, extensions will be constantly required.

"Under existing conditions and so long as the Settlement continues to develop, in my opinion, there must be continued interruptions to the surfaces of the roads since, whatever measures of amelioration may from time to time prove practicable and be adopted, it will always remain that unless roads are drained and sewered and the necessary mains required by the public utility services placed in position in advance of requirements, continued interruption to the road surfaces will be inevitable."

Commons Divided On Preference Proposals

solutions would be left to a free vote of the House and the Government would accept the verdict, the Government themselves proposed to vote against the resolutions.

He announced that the Government had re-considered their earlier decision with regard to the Economic Committee, and were prepared, if the Dominions desired, to consider the question, not on the lines of a committee as proposed, but perhaps as an ad hoc body, something like the Shipping Board. The Dominions would be consulted on the matter.

The Colonial Secretary said that it was worth considering whether it would not help Imperial unity and encourage confidence to invite not only the Dominion Prime Ministers, but responsible leaders of the Opposition to the Imperial Conferences. He knew that the latter were reluctant, but opinion he had consulted showed the conviction that some such change was absolutely necessary in order to make the Conferences more effective and real. It would only lead to disaster to continue with the Conferences only to find when they had broken up that nothing whatever had been done. This would lead to agitation against the Conferences, which would be disastrous to everybody.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, June 17.—The Council of the League of Nations has approved the proposal to establish an epidemics information office at Singapore.

Sir John Simon on behalf of the Liberals stoutly opposed the resolutions.

Major-General J. E. B. Seely, who is an Imperialist Free Trader, however, begged the House to pass the first four resolutions and not to cling to doctrinaire Free Trade to the disadvantage of Imperial relations.

Dr. L. Haden Guest, the Secretary of the newly-formed Labor Commonwealth Group, also announced his intention of favoring the first four resolution.

Colonel Josiah Wedgwood declared that the lines on which the Labor Party proposed to proceed were more likely to secure permanent unity of the Empire than the Conservative policy.

The debate was adjourned.

Smuts Defeated In South Africa

(Reuter's Service)

Capetown, June 17.—The general elections were held today.

The Prime Minister, General Smuts was defeated in a straight fight with Labor for Pretoria West.

The earlier results show that the polls have increased as compared with the 1921 election.

The Minister of the Interior, Public Health and Education, Mr. Patrick Duncan, and the former Minister of Railways and Harbors, Mr. J. W. Jagger, have been returned.

The Ministerialists have up to the present lost three seats and gained none.

Later.—The Ministrialist, Sir Abe Bailey, has been defeated at Krugersdorp.

The Party gains hitherto are as follows:

Labor 7: Nationalists 3: Ministerialists 3: Independents 1.

It is difficult to see how the Government can now secure a majority.

The polling on the Rand shows increased Labor and Nationalist votes.

(Reuter's Service)

Capetown, June 17.—The Labor leader, Mr. Creswell, has been re-elected.

Up to the present the state of the parties is as follows:

Ministerialists 25: Labor 18: Nationalists 12: Independent 1.

Industrial Meet In Peking, Sept. 1

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 15.—With regard to the Industrial Conference, a report on which was circulated some weeks ago, the Ministry of Commerce has telegraphed to the provinces saying that the conference will be held in Peking, beginning on September 1, and that all necessary information regarding the delegates from the provinces should reach Peking by August 1, so that arrangements can be made for their transportation over the Government railways. It is proposed to issue free railway tickets to all delegates.

A Chinling mandate accepts the resignation of Senator Tung Shih-en as one of the special delegates to welcome the Pan Chan Lama, and appoints in his stead Mr. Li Nai-fen.

The Metropolitan Police have given instructions for the Peking residence of Mr. Tsao Yu-lin to be restored to him. The order for the arrest of Mr. Tsao was cancelled nearly two years ago, but but apparently no action had been taken until yesterday regarding his property in Peking, which has been in the custody of the police since the order for his arrest in 1920.

Notice To Subscribers

In an endeavor to produce an even better paper than was formerly the case—an endeavor which the steadily growing popularity of THE CHINA PRESS has proved to be successful—the publishers have recently increased the editorial staff, supplemented the cable and foreign correspondence services, added a pictorial news section, and improved the editorial and feature contents. These improvements naturally entail a much heavier cost of production, and thus we are reluctantly compelled to increase our rates of subscription, as from April 1st, as follows:

One Year	Mex.	$28.00
Six Months	"	15.00
Four Months	"	10.50
One Month	"	2.75

Postage to outports, etc. $6.00 per annum extra.

Under the new rates subscribers will still obtain THE CHINA PRESS more cheaply than it can be purchased day by day on the street. Allowing 312 publishing days to the year (230 weekdays and 52 Sundays), the annual cost, if purchased on the street, is $36.40.

NANYANG CO. IS EXPANDING IN TOBACCO PROGRAM

Indicates Growing Activity For Big Firms

HUGE INCREASE

First Quarter's Figures For Year Eloquent

The recent opening of new offices in New York City by the Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Co., Ltd., of Shanghai, as the first step in a large expansion program calls attention to the intense activity of the various tobacco companies in China, native and foreign, and the immense trade in cigarettes. The increase in cigarettes imported into Shanghai in the first quarter of 1924 as compared with the same period of 1923 is remarkable—713,450,000 cigarettes over 157,224,000.

The enterprise of the tobacco companies has been largely responsible for the recent development of out-door advertising in China. Several companies in Shanghai now give a service which covers all of the principal cities of the country, and 85 percent of the sign boards which they are erecting are devoted to exploiting old and new brands of cigarettes.

Immediately after the recent death of Kan Chiu-nam, president and one of the founders of the Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Co., Ltd., the board of directors determined that the loss of the financial genius should not be reflected in decreased business.

WORLD FOR MARKET

"We felt that the best way to honor the memory of our great president is to sell still more cigarettes," a Shanghai official of the company said yesterday. "Consequently we are guarding against unnecessary expenditures and are strengthening our organisation all along the line. We are looking not only to China but to the world as our market."

Mr. Kan Sai-hing, who recently was elected president to fill the vacancy left by the death of his father went to America to arrange for the opening of the new offices and to strengthen other foreign agencies. Since his father's death last October, Mr. Kan has been very active in directing the affairs of the great cigarette manufacturing company in which he had already served in many important capacities, including that of general manager in Shanghai.

The new president of the company also holds the important position of leaf department manager and is considered an authority on native Chinese tobacco leaf which is purchased in large quantity.

Mr. Kan will return to New York this summer in time to supervise this year's purchases of tobacco and new manufacturing machinery for the factories in Shanghai and Hongkong. The Nanyang Brothers, Inc., is the name of the New York subsidiary of the local company. Tsze E. Pun, an expert on Oriental trade, is manager of the New York office.

FOUNDED IN 1907

The Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Co., Ltd., which was founded in Hongkong in 1907 with a capital of $100,000, now has a capital of $15,000,000. Recent yearly profits have amounted to over $4,000,000. Each of the factories in Hongkong and Shanghai has a daily output of over 5,000,000 cigarettes.

There is an interesting three-cornered competition in China between the Nanyang concern, the British-American Tobacco Co., Ltd., and the Japanese Corporation, the Toa (East Asia) Tobacco Co., Ltd. The Anglo-American company is capitalised at £22,500,000, and the Japanese company at Y. 10,000,000. All of these companies and many other smaller ones are increasing output, encouraging the planting of tobacco in China and developing new sales territories.

Tobacco leaf imported into Shanghai for the first quarter of 1924 amounted to 135,000 piculs, as compared with 103,320 piculs for the same period in 1923. Prepared tobacco in tins decreased from a value of Hk. Tls. 30,224 in the first quarter of 1923 to Hk. Tls. 17,206 in the first quarter of 1924. The importations of pipes, including cigarette holders, had a value of approximately Hk. Tls. 62,000 for the first quarters of 1924 and 1923.

Want Branding Of Prison Textiles By Legislation

Public Has A Right To Know Origin Of Goods, Say Garments Men

Washington, May 14.—Representatives of the textile and garment industries are in Washington conferring with members of Congress in an effort to bring about legislation that will compel the branding of prison-made goods entering into interstate commerce to show that it is made by convict labor.

It is proposed to stop open market sale of prison-made textiles and articles made therefrom. The committee members are explaining to the members of Congress that it is recognised that prisoners must work and that prison production, therefore, must find a market profitable to the State. But they hold it is not necessary that prisoners shall be, as at present, largely engaged in producing textiles and garments for sale on the open market in direct and harmful competition with wage-earning workers.

CAN CONTROL PRODUCTION

The Federal Government, the States and their political subdivisions buy each year nearly a billion dollars' worth of supplies, only a small part now being made by the prisoners under Federal and State control. The entire prison population of the country, those fit to work, can be employed making necessary Governmental supplies, it is declared, and it is estimated that total prison production under these circumstances cannot greatly exceed in value $50,000,000. Thus the States can control prison production to meet their own needs and also, when necessary, interchange with other States and political sub-divisions thereof.

"We seek Federal legislation which will compel the branding of prison products when they enter interstate commerce," spokesmen for the industries declared in a statement today. "The taxpayer is entitled to positive identification of goods, the production of which is subsidised by the State. Compulsory labor in our prisons should not be permitted to break down the value of products and labor in the mills and factories of citizens.

"While we seek Federal branding legislation as one means of insuring positive protection against ignorant sale or misrepresentation of prisonmade products, and because our industry is so seriously affected that prompt measures are essential, we also recognise our individual responsibility to Federal and State governments and offer our assistance in working out better methods of disposing of prison products.

RESTRICTIONS IN OHIO

"In Ohio no goods, wares nor merchandise made by convict labor in any penal institution in that or any other State shall be exposed for sale unless branded, labeled or marked convict made and with the year and name of the institution in which produced. We are seeking Federal legislation that will declare such goods entering into interstate commerce to be misbranded unless labeled, tagged or branded to show that they had been produced, made, manufactured, processed or finished in a prison, penitentiary, reformatory or other establishment in which convict labor is employed, and prescribe penalties for violations."

The delegation includes Ralph Hunter, of Hall-Hartwell and Co., Troy; N. Y., Stanley A. Sweet president of Sweet, Orr and Co., New York; Gerish H. Milliken, of Deering, Milliken and Co., New York; S. F. Dribben, of the Cone Export and Commerce Company, New York; A. F. Allison, secretary of the international Association of Garment Manufacturers, and Carey E. Quinn, its Washington counsel, and Perry Newell, secretary of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York.

JAPAN SILK FUND PROBLEM SOLVED BY AUTHORITIES

Bank Of Japan And Yokohama Specie Bank To Aid Filatures

The Government has solved the silk fund problem as one of its last measures. The Bank of Japan and the Yokohama Specie Bank are instructed by the Government to come to the rescue of distressed filature owners.

Thanks to the good offices of Viscount Shibusawa and Mr. Gentaro Shimura raw silk people's quake loss problem has been solved in principle. But how to finance filature owners' cocoon purchases has been left a problem.

Usually filature owners obtain cocoon funds from their commission houses at Yokomama. Or when their help is inadequate they go to bankers for help, in which case commission houses endorse their bills. This arrangement is not possible this year because of the quake loss. Filature owners have had, therefore, no means of raising their cocoon buying funds other than dumping their old silks in the Yokohama raw silk market.

Occasional slumps which have distressed the Yokohama market for several weeks past are nearly always attributable to that distressful condition of filatures.

Thus far it has been often tried by men interested in the stability of the silk trade to eliminate this trouble with the help of the Government, but owing to the troubles following the general election the Government has been unable to pay attention to this important question.

According to an official statement issued last week by the Minister of Finance, the Government which is to be replaced by the Kenseikai administration in a few days, has solved the problem as one of its last actions. The statement says that the Government has studied the burning problem for the silk industry and trade. The Bank of Japan and the Yokohama Specie Bank have not turned their cold shoulders to silk men. Along with other banks they have been ready to help silk men.

BANKS DOING THEIR BEST

"However," continues the official statement, "Yokohama commission houses' usual advances to filature owners are not made with usual readiness to filature owners on the quake's after effects. In spite of the Yokohama Specie Bank and other banks doing their best to help silk men, filature owners feel the scarcity of cocoon funds.

"The Government, with this in view, advances its own funds to the Yokohama Specie Bank on the condition that the bank will use the funds for the purpose of facilitating commission men's advances to filature owners. The Bank of Japan is at the same time instructed to facilitate the accommodation of cocoon funds in provincial filature centers.

"The Government hopes," concludes the statement, "that with those banks' activities the accommodation of silk funds this year may be greatly facilitated."

LONGING FOR MORNING!

A Talk To The Sufferer From Insomnia.

With what satisfaction you have retired after a particularly fatiguing day! "A good night's rest and I shall be as fresh as a daisy in the morning," you say to yourself. But sleep refuses to come. The hours seem interminable as you toss and turn longing for slumber, and your brain works as if on wheels, puzzling out problems, magnifying troubles, giving you no rest or peace. May be more than once in the night you rise in despair and look at the clock, longing for daylight to appear.

What is the cause of these attacks of insomnia? The answer is to be found by studying for a brief while the condition of your general health. You have felt tired and dispirited during the day, work has been a trouble, people have seemed vexatious, you have not found enjoyment either in food or recreation. The fact thus becomes obvious that because of overwork, worry, need of a rest and change, or some other reason you have drained almost to the limit your reserve of nervous energy.

And how can further attacks of this insomnia be avoided? The answer to this is, by building up your health through the blood by tonic treatment, for which purpose nothing can be better than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

For five and thirty years Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been world-famous as a blood builder and nerve tonic. Not only do they purify and enrich the blood, but they create new, rich, red blood which imparts fresh life and vigour to all the organs of the body. Their first effect usually is to stimulate the appetite; then the spirits revive, and insomnia gives way to health-restoring sleep. For sufferers from anaemia, neurasthenia, general weakness, digestive troubles, the ill-effects of illness, overwork, mental or physical exhaustion, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a restorative of the utmost value. Your chemist sells them, or post free, $1.50 per bottle, $8.00 for 6 bottles, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

FARMING WEALTH OF CANADA SHOWS UPWARD TRENDS

Revenue Is Slightly Under 1923: Ontario Leads In Agriculture

New York, May 16.—Agricultural wealth of Canada in the year 1923 has been estimated at $7,395,013,000, as compared with $774,461,000 in 1922, a net increase of $599,522,000, says Earle Hooker Eaton, press representative of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The items comprising this total are lands $3,316,061,000 buildings, $1,382,684,000; implements and machinery, $665,172,000; live stock, $613,260,000; poultry, $39,840,000; animals on fur farms, $5,864,000, and agricultural production, $1,342,132,000. The net increase for the year is made up of an increase in land, buildings and implements and machinery amounting to $739,669,000, set against a decrease in other items of live stock, poultry, animals on fur farms, and agricultural production amounting to $149,117,000.

Ontario leads the provinces in gross agricultural wealth with a total of $2,097,489,000, followed by Quebec with $1,293,799,000 and Saskatchewan with $1,675,279,000. In order come Alberta, $1,032,889,000; Manitoba, $630,017,000; British Columbia, $218,586,000; Nova Scotia, $168,775,000; New Brunswick, $168,638,000, and Prince Edward Island, $79,643,000. Ontario maintains a lead in the value of building, live stock, poultry and agricultural production. Saskatchewan leads in the value of lands, implements and machinery. Prince Edward Island has a wide lead in fur farming.

The estimated gross agricultural revenue of Canada in 1923 was $1,342,132,000, compared with $1,389,000,000 in 1922, divided among the provinces in the following order: Ontario, $406,511,000; Saskatchewan, $291,439,000; Quebec, $232,580,000; Alberta, $200,950,000; Manitoba, $84,081,000; British Columbia, $43,376,000; Nova Scotia, $40,653,000, and Prince Edward Island, $15,929,000.

The Province of Ontario alone accounted for 29 percent of the total agricultural revenue; Saskatchewan 21 percent; Quebec 17 percent; and Alberta 15 percent. Quebec and Ontario taken together accounted for 47 percent of all agricutrural revenue; the prairie provinces for 43 percent; the three maritime provinces 6 percent; and British Columbia 3 percent.

The items which entered into Canada's 1923 agricultural revenue were field crops, $899,166,000; dairy products, $216,356,000; farm animals, $82,402,000; poultry and eggs, $58,647,000; fruits and vegetables, $58,216,000; maple products, $4,760,000; tobacco, $3,518,000; and wool $3,160,000; and $1,538,000 fur farming. Of the total agricultural revenue, field crops accounted for 67 percent; dairy products for 17 percent; farm animals for 6 percent; poultry and eggs for 4 percent; and fruits and vegetable for 4 percent.

DESIRE PRACTICAL COOPERATION IN EVERY BUSINESS

Banker Says This Essential Factor Must Rule In Industry

New York, May 15.—G. A. O'Reilly, vice-president of the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company, speaking yesterday at the annual meeting of the National Association of Store Manufacturers in the Hotel Astor, declared that practical co-operation was necessary in all lines of business and industry. He said that such co-operation would come only at a price—that it must be "bought and paid for" by all the interests concerned.

"The producer, the manufacturer, the distributer, all must get along together, if reasonably best results are to come to any of them," said Mr. O'Reilly. "Do these different elements understand each other? Have they individually or collectively made sufficient effort to determine and iron out the unnecessary points of difficulty which arise in their business contact? Is your organisation doing this for its members?

"And how about the laborer, that perhaps most vitally important element in the entire economic situation? This is not a labor-capital talk, rather one upon business co-operation, but I am sure that my audience of practical business men will realise, at least as fully as I realise it, that in no field of activity is there to be found a greater need for the development of the best and the highest expression of co-operative organisation than in the industrial field, the field in which employe and employer must get together, whether they know how to get along together or not.

"It is not imaginable to me that anything but the spirit of practical co-operation will serve to eliminate the absurdities in this industrial relationship, and cause men to distinguish between their own best interests and that combination of interests and prejudices and whims with which they now are obliged to get along.

"But the spirit of co-operation is only the beginning of the story. After that has been developed most fully there must come sufficient realisation to serve as a guide for action. And after that, the willingness on the part of the individual not only to co-operate, but also to make whatever concessions, pay whatever price may be necessary in the creation of a condition of affairs in which a pleasant and profitable and satisfactory getting together will be possible. Unless willing to do this, discussion of co-operation at best will be interesting only for academic consideration."

Mr. Millard's Views On The China Situation

NO one would accuse Mr. Thomas F. Millard of being anything but friendly to China and whether or not there is agreement with his conclusions he at least is always interesting. He came to the Orient originally as a correspondent for Scribner's Magazine, the New York Herald and the London Daily Mail to cover the Boxer uprising and the Russo-Japanese War and after editing newspapers and magazines in China served in an advisory capacity to the Chinese delegations at the Paris and Washington Conferences. In addition to his journalistic work, he has also written about a dozen books on various phases of the international political problem in the Far East, the latest being "Conflict of Policies in Asia," in which he traces political developments since the Paris Conference.

Mr. Millard's new book has been generally reviewed in the press, but there are some parts of it which are of general interest in that he discusses quite thoroughly the present situation of China and the international significance of this situation. Probably the most striking suggestion in his book is that a withdrawal of foreign "recognition" of Peking might help the position of the Powers in respect to the Chinese people. After discussing the disintegration of China from the standpoint of a central government, he makes the statement that:

"Recognition (of Peking) is continued only because in the circumstances the Powers do not know what else to do."

Then, after making this statement, Mr. Millard discusses the possible effect of continued recognition or a withdrawal of recognition to the following effect:

"There is a presumption that if recognition should be withdrawn from Peking, it would precipitate an insoluble confusion worse than that which exists. I do not agree. With conditions as they are, in some ways the recognition of Peking impairs the foreign position, and weakens the diplomatic touch with the country. Outside of Peking, the points of official contact with the country are the treaty-ports and the consulates there. The fact is that effective diplomatic contacts and influence now are almost entirely through the consulates, for, while the superior diplomats in Peking maintain the fiction that the Government there is the actual Government of China, the consuls in other localities, mostly in regions where the governments are 'independent' of Peking, go on dealing with the local officials just as if nothing were awry. Locally and in a general sense, therefore, foreign diplomatic contact is kept up only by the consuls shutting their eyes to the political situation and taking up local questions with the local officials in the usual way. This can go on indefinitely; and if official 'recognition' of Peking should be withdrawn by the Powers, or by some of them, there would be no appreciable impairment of foreign influence as long as the Powers maintained their consulates and kept in communication through them with the local administrations. A time is certain to come, if there is no national unification in China, when the Powers will find themselves in a position of seeming to sustain by their 'recognition' a Government that is repudiated by the country. That is an invidious position before the Chinese people, and would have reactions unfavorable to the general position of foreigners in China."

In another place in the book Mr. Millard refers to the Chinese Government in Peking in the following humorous but nevertheless significant fashion:

"The most discouraging thing in China, almost the only discouraging thing, is the Government of China. Peking is the only place in China, where it is possible to be wholly pessimistic about the country."

Naturally Mr. Millard devotes considerable attention to the subject of American policy toward China since the Washington Conference, and since this is a question which has likewise bothered American citizens generally as well as Chinese, Mr. Millard's views are quite interesting:

"The interest of the United States in the fate of China is greater than that of any other Western Power. This does not estimate 'interests' in the sense of investments, present commerce, active or inert 'concessions' or what not, or by what has happened in the past. It estimates in terms of geography, of populations, of races, of fundamentals of government and looks toward the future. The policy of the American Government toward China is like the policy of the Monroe Doctrine in the Western hemisphere. The conditions and circumstances differ, but the principles are the same.

"Imperishable fame awaits the American statesman who will declare the Hay Doctrine to be the unilateral policy of the United States, as its forerunner, the Monroe Doctrine, is. The time is ripe for such a declaration. The immediate problem of the American Government in the Far East is to make the Washington Conference treaties effective. . . For the time, results of those provisions are disappointing, because the Chinese Government is incapable of carrying out its part toward making the treaties effective. It is quite useless to talk about giving up extraterritoriality now or soon. The Chinese see that, and the Peking Government wishes to postpone the visit of the foreign commission of investigation."

The book ends with this further significant statement on American policy in respect to China:

"In China, with Japan, and especially with regard to the meeting of American and British policies in Asia, a steady and continuous use of common sense in time should carry the American policy (of the Open Door) through. One thing could defeat it in the end: a failure of the American Government to comprehend its importance and to support it with constructive action."

General Smuts' Defeat

THE Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, General Smuts, is a man invested with such a magnetic personality that his defeat in the general elections in a straight fight with Labor is an event calculated to excite attention and provoke comment much farther afield than South Africa. From the results so far published, it is difficult to see how the Government can now secure a majority, the polling on the Rand showing increased Labor and Nationalist votes.

In deciding to go to the country, General Smuts and his colleagues were influenced by considerations which go beyond the result of the recent Wakkerstroom election, which formed the subject matter of an article in these columns the other day. If we are right in assuming that it was not merely the position of parties as it appeared on the surface that influenced the decision which General Smuts announced in the opening days of April, it will be seen that he was justified in taking a course which, in the event of the country failing to support him, would result in the Pact having to face part of the period of depression instead of coming in with what might prove to be a return to better times. It is not alone the stable element in South Africa who will get a shock at the idea of the country being run by a political combination whose very appearance in the field will prove a setback to South African credit and whose only really constructive suggestion is to be found in Mr. Tielman Roos's big idea for printing as much paper money as anyone may want—the process which helped to drag Russia, Germany and Austria into the depths of economic distress.

It is essential that everyone concerned for the future of South Africa should look the facts in the face and consider what the alternative to the present Government is. It is impossible to imagine that a combination holding its power insecurely from day to day could induce throughout the Union that spirit of goodwill and co-operation among all sections which is really the thing that is lacking in the country's national life. From the point of view of human love of change and hope from things untried, the idea of a new Government may attract some people outside the ranks of the hopelessly prejudiced, but the future of the country is too big a thing to be trifled with. A Pact Government would either be futile entirely, or it might carry out measures whose effects would only become apparent too late to save the country from them except by a long and painful process of recovery.

As for the attacks which have latterly been directed against General Smuts by the Labor leader, one need only point to the respective records of these two men. As between those records, there can be only one opinion among sensible and dispassionate observers of events in South Africa in recent years, General Smuts is far from infallible. He would be the last man to claim that he has made no mistakes or is free from defects. But he, of all public men in the Union, has the least cause to shrink from a comparison between himself and either of his chief political opponents in respect either of ideals or of actual service. It appears that those who have been out to prevent him from completing his task and to destroy the great work already done have succeeded, for the time being, at any rate. General Smuts' defeat is a sinister event the upshot of which it is not easy to foretell.

Imperial Preference

ONE of the most important debates which have been held in the British House of Commons for some years is that at present proceeding on the subject of recommendations of the Imperial Conference. Since the policy was first adopted of taking the Colonies more into imperial councils, the conferences have been held from time to time with some success, though, on the whole, it has to be admitted that the failure at times of the Imperial Government to carry all the resolutions into effect has given rise to some dissatisfaction. The present Government has gone considerably farther in this direction than its predecessors, as, for example, in its decision to put the Singapore base scheme into abeyance, and to disregard the recommendations regarding imperial preference. Those recommendations were undoubtedly of such a nature as to impose extra taxation on non-colonial imports into Great Britain, thereby increasing taxation. To say the least, such a proposal was unlikely to commend itself to the masses, for it would undoubtedly mean an extra charge on the consumer.

It will be noticed that the first four resolutions before the Commons are designed to circumvent this opjection, and the first, of which we are fortunate to obtain some details, proposes that figs, raisins, plums and currants produced in the Empire should be imported free. In other words, preference would be established on this class of goods by the continued imposition of the existing import tax on the foreign product, as against duty free import from the Colonies. This would amount to a concession probably unanticipated by any Imperial Conference, and would place the colonial producer at a pronounced advantage tending towards the extension of his market in the United Kingdom and an increased development of the industry. It is clear, however, that the wholesale application of such a principle to the whole import trade of the United Kingdom would be attended in the long run with unfortunate results to the British revenue, for the displacement of foreign imports by colonial would eventually lead to a grave diminution of revenue, which, at the present time, could not easily be sustained. Probably to counterbalance this, the remaining six of the ten resolutions to be considered during the debate propose the converse principle, viz., increased taxation on foreign imports, the impost on colonial products remaining as at present. Again arises the question of an ultimate decrease in revenue from import taxation, but, in this instance, it need not, of necessity, entail the complete obliteration of revenue under this head as would be the outcome of adopting the first series of resolutions. To repair the ravages thus made in the revenue, doubtless other sources of income could and would be devised, but whether they would prove acceptable to those who ultimately would have to pay is entirely another matter.

Consequently the Government has adopted a purely non-committal attitude. In response to an appeal for a non-party debate, the resolutions are left to a free vote of the House, though the members of the Government have announced that they, themselves, will vote against the resolutions. Thus while they have, as part of their policy, discarded these recommendations of the Imperial Conference, they are now prepared to accept the verdict of the Commons on the matter, in a manner which involves no question of Governmental defeat. It is not difficult to perceive why this course should be adopted. They were certain of the Liberal vote, which abhors the very names of tariff reform or imperial preference; it was sure of its own party if the matter was debated along party lines, for the Government Whips would have brought its adherents solidly into line. But it is apparent that to do so would have been openly to flout those Colonies whose representatives had passed the original recommendations. The Government has, consequently, adopted its present attitude, which, if the sixty Labor Members of the Commonwealth group act up to the Opposition's expectations, may lead to the passage of the first four resolutions; the remaining six seem to have little chance of passing and the Colonies appear to have some prospect of receiving a "fifty-fifty" deal.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

IRON IN THE SOUL

You need iron in your soul.

Just as you need iron in your body.

And the best form in which to get iron is not any kind of iron tonic, pills, or tinctures, but such combinations of iron as occur in natural foods.

So you do not need any Spartan cult, any artificial toning up, under the spell of some fad, but daily iron that comes from right living.

What I mean by iron is that hardness of will, that rigidity of purpose, that firm self-mastery, which makes life strong and positive and efficient. To be more specific, what you need is a more virile will.

That means to have yourself so in hand that when your judgment says "I must," you obey gladly, without struggle or friction.

Most of our unhappiness comes from flabbiness of will. The will is clogged by desires. It moves laggardly, creakily, if at all.

The will ought to operate as tensely and promptly as a steel spring.

What a lot of plain and fancy misery we endure just because we cannot move swiftly to do the thing we ought—and enjoy it!

Men, women, and children are whining, puling, complaining, writhing, all because they have developed strong desires and no will to handle them.

How can I get iron into my soul's blood?

The first thing to do is to realise that the better and more permanent satisfactions of life are those we get by overcoming, not those we get by yielding.

Man is essentially a master. The ego is wretched when it is not dominant. And the first thing of all to dominate is one's self.

Self-mastery is not the secret of power only, but also of joy.

The happy, cheerful, contented person is not the one that everlastingly "has strawberries, sugar, and cream, and sits on a cushion and sews a fine seam." No one ever got to heaven nor into a heavenly state of mind "permanently" by self-indulgence.

Discipline is the father of happiness.

Right on the heels of self-pampering, ever follow the seven devils of perversion, with their seven whips of pain, and their seven poisoned prods of self-contempt.

Then, having realised the need of self-mastery, you must practise it.

And do not take it up as an exercise apart from your life, like dumb-bells, but put it into your daily program. Plan to be daily at something that calls for coercing self. Do regularly something hard. William James used to say we ought to do every day two or three things we particularly disliked—just for practise.

Change your tastes—in work, in play, in eating, and drinking, in music, in art. Make up your mind what you OUGHT to like and drill yourself into liking it. Otherwise it's downstream for you.

Change your desires. Do not forever be led by the nose by your cravings.

Re-enthrone your intelligence, and put the sceptre of will in its hand.

The pits of wretchedness, world-weariness, and boredom are full of the slackers and weaklings. The drunkards, dope victims, sex perverts, loafers, and all the innumerable company of the lost, are they that have no iron in the soul.

Thumbs Up And Down

Of the human hand the thumb is the most notable digit, preeminent in agriculture, the arts, mechanics, war. In early ages man fought his battles with bows and arrows. The bow was useless to pull the string without the thumb. After a battle the prisoners were enslaved or their thumbs cut off. Decisive battles in later times were won generally by the bowmen.

The thumb was honored in religion, in peace; it bestowed hospitality, and, as civilisation grew apace, commerce, business and correspondence of all kinds, was sealed with the aid of the thumb. At a time when the number of people who could read and write was infinitesimal, a letter or a bond was sealed with wax pressed by the thumb of the sender—the progenitor of our modern finger-printing system.

In the earliest days of the East, the impression of his thumb was the monarch's sign manual. It is of particular interest, therefore, to note that in recent times in India, Sir William Herschel proposed to use thumb prints in the Hugli district courts to protect those executing documents and unable to sign their names. Sir E. R. Henry was responsible for the adoption by the Bengal police of the finger-print system for crime detection, and the use of finger and thumb prints has now spread to various public departments in India.

A transfer of property is attested by the thumb print, documents are registered with the mark of the thumb for identification, and it is also used in connection with dealings of opium growers, the signing of contracts under the emigration law, medical certificates vouching for the person examined, and is held as a certain method of stopping fraud and imposture. As recognised in the wisdom of the East many centuries ago, the thumbprints of no two persons are the same.

The thumb had its uses in affirmation, the oath of the thumb being substituted for the names of saints and even of the Almighty. It seems scarcely credible that in the nineteenth century the oath of the thumb might have been seen and heard in many a street wrangle. Two street urchins itching for a fight would put their thumbs to their mouths, wetting them, then, thumbs raised in the air say: "See this wet—see this dry," as they wiped them: "May I cut my throat if I tell a lie." This oath of the thumb, delivered by many a child in the street with due solemnity and seriousness, was an unconscious parody on an old church form connected with the holy water.

Signet rings were worn by the aristocracy in medieval times on their thumbs. If husband and wife were separated, and communication were necessary, the bearer of a message was vouched for by the seal showing forth the impression of the well-known thumb ring. The thumb played an important part in the celebrations at Venice on the occasion of the Doge's marriage of the Adriatic. The festival, banquets, concerts, gondola races, ended when the Doge removed the ring from his thumb and threw it into the Adriatic.

In some foreign countries men and women walk with their thumbs linked together. Sometimes even two men will walk together thus.

Old-time Celts, in taking holy water from the font, were careful to dip the thumb first. In Sir Walter Scott's romance of "Rob Roy" we find the astute Bailie Nicol Jarvie, the model of honesty, closeted with Rob Roy, who owes the Bailie a considerable sum of money, which he promises to repay immediately if he will go with him to his home in the Highlands. The Bailie loves money, but he refuses, well aware of the risk. Rob Roy says he will protect him. Bailie hesitates.

"Oh, mon, dinna fear for yersel. On the word of a Highlander, trust me. I'll swear." Bailie still hesitates. "Mon, here's my thumb—I'll ne'er beguile ye."

In the good old days, when torture was practiced, the thumb was not overlooked. Witness the thumb-screw of the Spanish Inquisition and the suspension of prisoners by the thumbs.

Legend had it that all good brewers determined the exact temperature required by certain phases of brewing by dipping the thumb into the vat. Every one knows the saying "rule of thumb," signifying guidance by practice rather than theory. Likewise the adjective well-thumbed, as applied to the pages of a much-used book, although we do not consciously use the thumb in turning pages. "Under one's thumb" is also an expression as common as the one which tells how some one can twist some one else around his or her little finger, the little finger being usually a feminine one and the person twisted belonging to the opposite gender.

"Simon says 'Thumbs up,' Simon says 'Thumbs down,'" in the old game, is doubtless a reference to the power which lay with the people in the Roman amphitheatre, when in the gladiatorial combats the life of the vanquished was spared if the spectators wished him to live. At the crucial moment, when the victor was prepared to deal the decisive blow, came a moment's pause. If thumbs were shut up in fists, the conquered one received the gift of his life; if it was thumbs down he received his death blow.

To Prove That The Earth Turns

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS,

"How could the French astronomer make a circumference of lines on the sand with a pendulum, inasmuch as the same rested on the earth?—S. B."

This somewhat cryptic question, as it appears without explanation, no doubt refers to the famous experiment of Foucault, who, with the aid of a long pendulum hung from the dome of the Pantheon in Paris, produced perhaps the most convincing of all demonstrations of the rotation of the earth.

The first requisite is that the pendulum shall be so suspended as to be free of all restraint, except the force of gravity. It continues as long as it keeps going, to swing to and fro in precisely the same absolute direction in space, without any regard to alteration of directional lines on the earth. This property belongs to any pendulum that is entirely free in its vibratory motion.

The fact which seems to puzzle the questioner, viz., that the circle of sand cut by the pendulum rests on the earth, is one of the essentials of the experiment. The relative immobility of the sand established the real rotational motion of the earth. I will try if I can make the explanation any clearer.

I need a picture, and here it is.

Proving that the Earth Turns.

Let us suppose that the little circles on the earth represent, each one, the sand circle of Foucault's experiment. The lines with an arrow point at both ends show the direction of the swing of the pendulum. Now, let us place the circle first around the north pole, and start the pendulum swinging across the pole. You can see that as the earth turns in the direction of the little curved arrows, carrying the circle with it, the latter will make a complete rotation with regard to the direction of the pendulum once every twenty-four hours.

Then make a similar circle at latitude 40 degrees north, and set the pendulum swinging as before. As the direction happens to be north-and-south, the swing accords with the meridian running through the place.

But wait until the rotation of the earth has carried the circle to another position, off toward the right, as shown. Now, observe that, because the pendulum has continued to vibrate in the same unchanging direction, the ends of its swings, shown by the arrow points, no longer coincide with the N and S points of the circle. The pendulum has deviated toward the right, or the east, and its bob cuts the circle along a diameter considerably inclined to the north-and-south line.

When the earth's rotation has carried the circle still farther eastward the divergence of the two lines will be still greater, and eventually the direction of the swing will have made a complete rotation with reference to the circle, or to the surface of the earth.

Why does this occur? Look at the circle again. Since it is attached to the globe, the northern edge has a shorter distance to travel with the rotation than the southern edge, so that the southern side skews around with regard to the northern side, thus displacing the north-and-south line running through the circle, with reference to the unchanging direction of the pendulum's swing.

But if we put the circle on the equator, where the meridian lines run at a right angle to the direction of rotation, there is no skewing around, and the pendulum's swing shows no change of direction. There is a short rule, the mathematics of which I have not space to explain, which tells us that the time required for the plane of the pendulum to make one complete circuit equals twenty-four hours divided by the sine of the latitude.

Ship Worth One And A Half Million Sold For $100,000

Shipping Board Loss In One Deal Admitted Before House Committee

Washington, May 13.—The House Committee investigating the Shipping Board was told today by J. Harry Philbin, manager of the ship sales department of the board, that the steamer City of Los Angeles, which was sold for $100,000 to the Los Angeles Steamship Company, was on the high seas during the ten days period she was advertised for sale in July, 1923.

"For all practical purposes that advertisement was utterly worthless and futile?" Representative Davis, Democrat, of Tennessee, asked.

"Yes sir," Philbin replied.

The committee prosecutor declared that nobody on the Atlantic Coast could have arrived on the Pacific Coast in time to examine the ship, and the witness agreed.

While $2,492,000 was spent to convert the ship into an oil burner and for repairs done by the Los Angeles Shipbuilding Company, it was appraised at $260,000, Mr. Davis developed from the witness. Captain A. F. Pillsbury made the appraisal for the board, Philbin said.

"And this Captain Pillsbury was the man who was representing the Los Angeles Steamship Company, which had the vessel under operating contract?" asked Mr. Davis.

"That is right, but it was a coincidence," Philbin said.

Davis asked if the City of Los Angeles was not a more valuable ship than the City of Honolulu, another ship operated for the board by the Los Angeles Steamship Company, which was destroyed by fire at sea and appraised at $1,500,000.

"They were both on a par, and were virtually sister-ships," the witness answered.

"Was Commissioner Lissner of the board on the sales committee which sold the City of Los Angeles?"

"Yes."

"He also resides at Los Angeles?"

"I understand so."

The prosecutor later developed testimony that additional repairs made on the ship brought the total spent on her before sale to $2,816,000.

"After having spent this much not considering her previous value," Davis insisted, "we sold her for $100,000 at a time when she was making a nice profit. Consequently this Lissner statement in defense or apology, which I am reading in saying the cost of this work was in excess of $2,000,000 was simply misleading to the extent of $816,000. That is a specious way of telling a half truth."

Continuing his reading of the Lissner report, which said if the vessel was not sold it would be necessary to scrap her, Mr. Davis said neither the operator nor the Fleet Corporation wanted to do that, because the vessel was making a profit.

Swims In Mid Ocean And Fights Sharks

Sailor Who Vanished From Tanker Picked Up After Floating 23 Hours

New York, May 6.—The story of a sailor who disappeared from his ship at sea and who, with a butcher knife, successfully battled with sharks, keeping afloat for 23 hours until rescued by another ship, was told yesterday by members of the crew of the Standard Oil tanker Frederick W. Weller in the office of E. W. Voorhies, United States Shipping Commissioner, at the Barge Office. The tanker arrived from South America Friday night.

According to the tanker's log, it was 150 miles off the coast of Panama, bound for Balboa on April 22, 2:15 a.m. when one of the crew disappeared. Captain Purdy cruised around the spot for several hours but was unable to find a trace of the sailor. He ordered a wireless to be sent to other vessels to keep a lookout for the man.

A note was found in the bunk of the missing sailor, which read: "Goodbye. Tanker Frederick W. Weller. (Signed) Claremont L. Staden, 937 Bushwich Avenue, Brooklyn." The name was that of a sailor on the ship's manifest.

On April 23 the tanker, approaching Balboa, received a radio from the British freighter Dorset, saying that Staden had been picked up. The message stated that he had a large butcher knife, and was extremely exhausted, having been in the water 23 hours, and during that time had had two fights with sharks. No further information was received from the Dorset. Presumably that ship will land the rescued sailor at New Zealand.

Staden is 21 years old and lived with his parents and a brother at the Brooklyn address given in his note. His parents said they had received no word from him in the last six months.
